

Tuesday's vote dedicating approximately $48 million for the redevelopment of the Fair Park property on the city's west side raised some interesting questions, and hope. It might also be raising concerns as just under $1 billion has been now earmarked for projects across the city since Mayor Langford's inauguration late last year.

I chimed in with my thoughts over on my Birmingham early this morning. Check 'em out and then add yours to the mix.

BTW, did anyone notice that one of the stations that still has a contract to advertise the Spring Fling at the arena after WJLD's contract was pulled just happened to be WATV? We're just saying...

Photo credit: Bob Farley/f8Photo