

FYI - we've been playing with the furniture, moving it around and seeing what will work and what won't. The result is a few days of quiet, sporadic posting while The Terminal is under "renovations" (though we're excited by the number of folks that have entered our City Stages contest - if you didn't know we were having one, check out the details). They've been quite simple so far, but if you haven't been to the front page, just click on over and check out the far sidebar.

We'll be continuing to make changes to the site during the next few days, including relaunching our City Stages section on Monday morning.

We're taking our time and hope that you don't mind having to put up with us being quiet. Now, where were we...