

Tonight, folks representing Birmingham's future will invade the Birmingham Museum of Art for an evening of networking and learning. The second annual YP Expo starts at 5:30 p.m. and goes until 9 p.m., with organizers expecting this year's attendee numbers to far exceed last year's estimated total of 550.

More than 30 area organizations will share information about how our growing young professional population can become more involved in our community, though we're thinking they'd love to see anyone who considers themselves young at heart this evening.