

We will be updating The Terminal's layout this evening beginning at about 11 p.m. We are hopeful that we'll be finished with the adjustments in time for John's 7:45 a.m. post but there may be a chance that it might take just a little bit longer.

The changes will not be readily apparent but they are coming because we are aware that anyone who normally looks at The Terminal using any current version of Microsoft Internet Explorer is currently suffering through extremely slow page loading times. Considering that it's most of our readers, we think we've got to take a look at it. We haven't heard of any issues with Safari or Firefox, so you might consider trying out these browsers. Otherwise, please be patient.

Thanks in advance.