

Perhaps today's announcement that the Birmingham Airport Authority has voted to change the name of our airport to Birmingham Shuttlesworth International Airport will cause many to voice concerns as to whether or not it should have been done (for whatever reason). One man's thoughts though went to whether or not there was any thought given to the logo proposed by Mayor Langford during the specially called meeting.

So, what do you think? (a.k.a. - blatant plug to go answer today's Magic City Question)

FYI - next steps include the FAA approving the name change (which shouldn't be a problem). It has always been reported that our BHM designation would remain unchanged with the new name, as it did with its old one. We're also a little nervous about the potential jokes that will be made about the shuttle buses promised back in April.
