

We wanted to share a comment that was posted over on Magic City Question by Peter at Faith Skate Supply that gives as good an update as any on the current grassroots push for a local skate park:

"Here is an update on what is going on with our quest. There is an Andy McDonald skateboard Demo going on at Belk Dept store on Oct. 11? They are building a big ramp for him to skate and have nothing to do with it afterwards. Faith is working with the city to purchase the ramp and donate to the city of Birmingham for a public halfpipe for kids to skate. It will be 5 feet high and 5 feet wide. As of right now, sounds like its going to happen....but we all know how things happen and get messed up. Faith will service the ramp and patrol the area daily too. What ever it takes we will get the "higher ups" in Birmingham that there is a huge need for a skatepark.

This is the first step of many. Please cross your fingers and know we need support with this in the future. Thank you to everyone who has left nice informative comments!"

You can still add your thoughts to the original question over on MCO.