

"We the People, in order to form a more perfect school system..." Those are the words that introduce readers to the Community Agreement developed through the Community Foundation of Greater Birmingham's Yes We Can! Birmingham campaign as the result of months of Community Conversations allowing input from residents across the city's 99 neighborhoods about what they wanted to see for our school system's children. Approximately 1,800 people participated in the conversations, focused on the following two questions: What kind of community do you envision for the future? and What kind of schools do we need to get us there?

The agreement was unveiled at a gathering held at Vulcan Park this past Saturday morning. It is available as a PDF for you to review and download.
