

One of the things announced by Mayor Langford during yesterday's City Council meeting was the repaving of the Five Points South area in advance of next month's PapaJohns.com Bowl (12.29). We've received word from the Five Points South Merchants Group that weather permitting, paving will take place along 11th Avenue South between 18th and 20th Streets while the city's Department of Public Works paints the light poles, so you might want to keep that in mind when navigating the area.

Word is that the work will not affect businesses and that the police will work to make sure that customers have access to area stores and restaurants. Other portions of 11th and Magnolia Avenues may be paved as well, with 20th Street also being milled at that time.
