

So I've been having conversations with some older, more established publications outside of our market trying to resolve some of our technical issues that would allow us to provide additional features to you on the site. I just wanted to take a moment to apologize for the delay in postings in recent days due to these conversations. I'm hoping that as we get more writers posting, delays during these periods will become less common.

For those that may be interested in helping out, we will be having a writers meeting tomorrow evening, July 26, at our offices. We'll get started at 5:45 p.m.

If you are planning to attend, please contact me as soon as possible so we can make sure that we have enough food. It's still early in the game, so we're asking for people to bring their own beverage. The meeting should not last more than one hour, though if the ideas keep flowing, we can go longer.

I also wanted to let you know that we've fixed the problems apologize for the problems that I'm assuming many have had with the Timetable calendar submission form. All of its problems have been fixed so please consider using the form to let us know of events that could be included on Timetable.

I look forward to seeing several of you tomorrow evening and continuing to hear your comments.
