

Dale Jackson used to be half of the morning show on 101.1FM's The Source before that station's format change in early July. He now has his own show called "The Attack Machine" in Huntsville.

Brian over on Flashpoint has written his own review of Jackson's new show and it sounds like he's doing pretty well so far. If you're interested in hearing what the new show's like, visit the station's website and click on the "listen live" button.