
 you didn't imagine it yesterday... you did see a John Morse post in this section yesterday.
 This morning the commentary, My recent brushes with wild speculation, was moved over to our my Birmingham section (just so you know where to send folks to go check it out).

Some of you may remember John from The Terminal's early days as the curator of our daily A Look Back series that referenced our city's incredible wiki Bhamwiki (which he started four years ago this month). His new column will appear occasionally (but with some frequency) on my Birmingham - the start of what will hopefully become a collection of the city's voices. We're definitely looking forward to it and glad to have him back on board.

By the way - if you want to add your voice to that collection, please feel free to contact me via email or Twitter.