

You may just wonder why we'd post a link to a story about the University of Louisville receiving a \$10 million donation from Papa John's earlier today, providing additional monies ($22 million total) for Cardinal Stadium (including naming rights) and enabling an expansion and renovation project to move forward.

Well, when you visit that link, take a look at the comment attributed to Papa John's CEO at the end of the posting and you'll understand. The PapaJohns.com Bowl is currently hosted at our own Legion Field and is scheduled to be played this year on December 22. This is the first public comment by the title sponsor suggesting that the game might be moved (in this case after renovations to the facility are completed).
