

We've had a rather boring button located over on the far right corner of the page for the better part of a month trying to get folks to submit questions for the mayoral candidates using this form. So we figured we'd debut our really cool Election '07 logo.

(NOTE: When our site launches later this evening, this button will go live, as will the button we have for the sidebar.)

UPDATE: Hear their answers to your questions NOW on our Election '07 site!

We also wanted to say thanks to all who've taken the time to submit their questions.

Now we've also mentioned our partnership with Catalyst in sharing our questions for the candidates forum scheduled for September 18. Well, we're making one more plea for questions before we retire the page (and so that they'll have some more questions for their forum). (You really want to read what's after the jump)

We'll be taking questions through tomorrow (Thursday) at 12 p.m. through our submission form. We've collected 24 general questions for the candidates, not to mention the ones submitted for the individual candidates, but we'd like more. To sweeten the deal, five (5) people that submit questions will win their very own Terminal T before it goes on sale here next week!

So come on, think of your best questions...
