

The list of national and regional food chains expanding into the region keeps on growing. Schlotzsky's has announced that they will be adding eight more locations to the Birmingham market by 2012. The Birmingham Business Journal has more information about the announcement from the Austin, TX-based company. We started a list of national retail chains that people may want to see come to town in the comments section of the Einstein Bros. post. Add some more if you want to, but we're looking forward to seeing your answers to this week's Magic City Question...

(NOTE: We'd come up with a cool name for this string of posts, but we haven't thought of one for it yet. If you do, go ahead and send it in.)

Related stories:

It's time to eat more donuts

Let's scream for more ice cream

Einstein Bros. joins the national chain mix