

We'll end the series of general questions for the candidates with two questions that at first glance may not be as glitzy as economic development and schools. But the answers provided for these two issues in particular, aside from the candidates' answers on their thoughts on the role of the mayor, provided a great opportunity to see how they would handle issues.

Check them out and let us know what you think in the comment section for both of them. Don't forget to check back throughout the weekend as we post profile pages for all 10 candidates; those that participated in our series will also have audio answers to two (2) additional questions. One was written by you, our readers, the common thread question was presented by us. Then let us know who you'd vote for in our poll when it begins tomorrow morning.
