

We Make
Birmingham

A quick scan of the Internet today (with an assist from former Terminal contributor Travis Bryant) led to the discovery of We Make Birmingham.

The site currently consists of several photos that when moused over say (coming soon). Clicking on any of the photos will redirect you to Caleb Chancey's website. Fans of Jon Black (the focus of a post over on Timetable yesterday) will recognize Chancey's name as he's taken several photos of the musician, including the one featured on his Dualtone Records bio page.

Travis' tweet about the website also included a link to a video with Jim Miller, a local carpenter and apparently one of the first subjects for the site. That's still an assumption, but one that makes it look like it will be worth keeping an eye on it in the coming weeks and months.
