

Even though we won't know the results until next Friday, it's interesting to note that the online voting for The Birmingham News' 2007 Readers' Choice Awards over on al.com is complete. One take is shared here by local blogger Wade Kwon on his site Wade on Birmingham. It's also the only place where you can see the list of finalists.

We kind of figured that we were just too new to be considered this year, though we are grateful to Matt for thinking us worthy in his list of suggested picks. Here's a look at last year's winners just to let you know who's trying to defend their crowns. It's not the Oscars but we'll be interested to see who wins.