

Humorist and National Public Radio star David Sedaris will be appearing at the Alys Stephens Center this Sunday but you'll have to figure out a way to get tickets. According to the Alys Stephens Center website, the show is sold out. We say give them a call, just in case. Here's what the ASC has to say about Sedaris:

"The master of satire returns! NPR humorist and best-selling author David Sedaris is one of our all-time favorites. His performances are always a hit, providing sold-out audiences with hilarious readings from his books including 'Naked,' 'Me Talk Pretty One Day,' and 'Holidays on Ice.' Sedaris may be the closest thing the literary world has to a rock star."

If that's the case, maybe there will be a scalper outside the doors selling "reasonably priced" tickets.

Cost: $25-45, students $10.
