

Your city center economic development organization now has a brand new online home. The folks at Operation New Birmingham been working on the new site for several months now, with the formal unveiling scheduled to take place later this month. Head on over and check it out.

We're particularly happy because of a certain hub for information being included in their "In the News" section.