

I was somewhat hard pressed to find events for this weekend. Luckily, it looks like I won't go wrong with tonight's Alabama Symphony Orchestra performance in Caldwell Park as the headliner for the weekend. As the opening night of the ASO's Sounds of Summer event series, they're mixing it up with Charlie Daniels Band. That's going to be quite the show, can you imagine "Devil Went Down to Georgia" backed up by an orchestra. Maybe it'll be kinda like this... just maybe, but probably not.

I digress... That's not the only show tonight; if you hurry you may still be able to get one of the extra tickets to the sold out Brandi Carlile show at WorkPlay, which starts at 9, but if not head over to Speakeasy and stay up late for the American Aquarium show.

Find your way to Bottletree tomorrow to see ISIS and Pelican, and support local jazz legend Cleve Eaton at his Alabama Jazz Hall of Fame benefit on Sunday.

What else are you doing this holiday weekend?
